

Chapter 2

This section guides you through programming tier 2 menu items as they appear in sequence. Each menu on tier 2 represents a group of settings related to the menu name. Refer to Figure 22 on page 30 for the menus available on tier 2.

To go directly to a setting in tier 2, you can enter the shortcut number for that setting. Shortcut numbers in this manual appear in parenthesis (), next to the setting name. For example this heading shows the Downloader Code shortcut to be 0000.

Shortcut numbers can be used from any setting location within tier 2.

With the system in program mode and the display showing SYSTEM PROGRAMMING, press # once. The display should show SECURITY.

The SECURITY menu lets you choose whether security settings affect the whole system (global) or a specific partition.

Each security access code (Installer, Dealer, System Master, or User) must be unique. Do not use the same combination of numbers for any two codes.

1. With the display showing SECURITY, press #. The display should show GLOBAL.
2. Press # again to advance to global settings
OR
Press A or B to display PARTITION 1, then press # to advance to partition 1 settings.

The following describes how to program the security settings that appear under GLOBAL.

Six of these zones are hardwired, and the simple installation allows the user to set up one of these as a doublewired smoke detector loop, capable of handling up to ten detectors. In addition, the Concord Express™ features an integrated radio receiver that is capable of handling up to 16 wireless zone; this permits easy expansion of your system with GE's proprietary LearnMode™ sensors as well as the use of remote keychain touchpads. This LearnMode technology is used to encrypt all remote touchpad transmissions, protecting your alarm codes from wouldbe thieves who may be using nearby cell phones to eavesdrop. These cards are easily connected to the system circuit board, and can be expanded even further with the SuperBus 2000 8Z input module, making for a total of 38 zones. Onsite programming is fast and easily accomplished using standard alphanumeric touch keypads that can be used to access a menudriven interface. Its powerful range of hightech features give the Concord Express™ the most "bang for the buck" of any other home security system in its class. Local permit fees may be required.
